Complete rules and Judging guidelines are given on the Apparatus Competition web site.

Entrants are responsible for the proper display of their apparatus. This includes a self-standing poster board display if desired. Entrants will not be present during judging, so it may be advisable to leave operating instructions for the judges. Entrants should feel free to identify themselves in their display. (The competition director will simply put post-it notes over the names and other identifying information until judging is completed in order to keep entrants' identities confidential until after the judging.)
