

Bursts, bangs and things that go bump in the night

With larger and better telescopes and detectors operating at many wavelengths astronomers have been able to shorten integration/exposure times. This has led to the discovery of a wealth of short-duration events which I will describe.'